BRIEF ABSTRACT OF LETTER.

Forwards for consideration and orders of Government a copy of the minute recorded by him on the inspection of the District Jail at Mysore on 14th March 08

NOTES AND ORDERS.

1 The Inspector General in his minute records his observations on three heads, namely, (1) That the building up of a new wall which was going on in the jail has been unfortunately suspended for want of funds,

(2) that the system of employing Convicts extra murally is uneconomical in the extreme and should be discontinued as far as possible, or at least all Departments using Convict-labour should be made to pay cash returns for such to the Jail factory,

(3) that every Convict on admission should be inoculated for plague, if in a fit state of health.

1 Certain additions and alterations to the Lunatic Jail were ordered to be effected at a cost of Rs 12,766 in G. O. No J 1115-1118 of 31.10.06, and funds for the same were provided for in by the Chief Engineer & the Inspector General now says that the work has been stopped for want of funds. The Chief Engineer may be asked whether it is possible to provide funds for the completion of the work?

2. As regards the question of the employment of convicts extra-murally & the desirability of levying a fee of two annas per each Convict so employed, the 23 The Insp^r Genl's letter and the Correspondence referred to therein show that the system of inoculating the prisoners for plague has been in existence in the Central Jail since 1901 and has been legalized by Govt. No. 4270-81/Jail 64-4 & 22/11/01. But no corresponding provision has been made in the Jail Manual owing to the fact that no copy of the order was forwarded at the time to the Judicial Branch for information & necessary further action. The Insp^r Genl. has suggested in his note of inspection of the Mysore Dist. Jail that the system should be introduced into that jail as well. The question

Paper under dispose of

2 In his notes of inspection of the Mysore District Jail in March 1908, forwarded to Government for consideration and orders, Major H.E. Drake Brockman, officiating Inspector General of Prisons, said that "every convict on admission should be inoculated for plague, if in a fit state of health". He was thereupon requested to submit a draft of a rule on the subject to be added to the Jail Manual.

3 In his reply the officiating Inspector General said that "a rule in the matter already existed" in Government order No.(4270-81)-Sany.64-4 dated 22nd November 1904 "and was in full force"; and he submitted a draft rule for insertion in the Jail Manual as Rule 26(c).

(Sanction of Govt)

4 The rule contained in Government order No. (4270-81)-Sany.64-4 dated the 22nd November 1904 was approved by His Highness in order dated 12th August 1904 and is to the effect "that all convicted prisoners be inoculated if they have not been previously inoculated, within a reasonable time, but that no under trial prisoner be inoculated except at his own request or with his full consent" A provision to this effect was however not inserted in the Jail Manual at the time, and from the officiating Inspector General's inspection notes, the rule would seem to have not been enforced in the Mysore Jail.

5 With reference to the draft rule submitted by the officiating Inspector General of Prisons, the Second Councillor has observed that inoculation confers immunity from plague for only 6 months or one year.

——————The Sanitary Commissioner, Col. Smyth, having been consulted in the matter, states that the duration of immunity from plague after inoculation has not been definitely settled but that "even the most ardent supporter of inoculation does not claim immunity from its performance for more than a year", and recommends "that every prisoner be inoculated on admission if physically fit, and at intervals of 12 months thereafter so long as he is in prison and if found fit for it".

16 The draft rule proposed to be inserted as Rule 26(c) of the Jail Manual has accordingly been revised as follows:-

"Every convicted prisoner shall, if found physic"ally fit, be inoculated for plague on admission into
"the Jail if he has not been inoculated within 12
"months previously, and shall be re-inoculated there-
"after at intervals of 12 months, should he happen
"to continue in the Jail; but no under-trial prisoner
"shall be inoculated except at his own request or with
"his full consent."

17 The Second Councillor is of opinion that this rule may be adopted, but the First Councillor considers that the proposed rule goes far beyond the limits which public opinion will sanction, and that it will be sufficient if the convicts are inoculated when plague breaks out or is likely to break out as an epidemic in the locality.

18 Compulsory inoculation of convicts has been enforced at least in the Central Jail for several years past with very satisfactory results, and I am not aware that there is any public opinion against this. The rule about compulsory inoculation is already in force and the addition now proposed ~~is~~ only to ~~repeat~~ re-inoculation after the expiry of the period of immunity. This may, I think, be approved.

MYSORE JAIL.

Copy of the remarks made by the Inspector General of Prisons in Mysore, in the minute book on 14th March 1908.

Inspected the Jail this morning. The new wall is nearly completed but the Jailor tells me that operations are temporarily suspended for want of funds! I hope it will be speedily finished now, as the present state of affairs is rather hard on the guarding staff, the opportunities for escape being many.

I notice that about 50% of the prison population is at extra-mural labour and that too, of course, the fittest of the convicts. If all the convalescents, sick and infirm be deducted from the balance it leaves a bare 50% to carry on all the current duties within the prison, including sanitation, cooking and industries. This state of affairs, I have always set my face against it, results in direct loss to Government in every way and has nothing to recommend it but everything to condemn it. To begin with, the guarding charges for such become at once excessive and the actual profits to the Jail are nil. Moreover the Jail industries are consequently retarded or even held in abeyance and practically all sources of profit both monetary as well as economic, to the Jail are stopped.

This system in vogue in the State prisons is very false economy and part from reasons above stated is most undesirable on disciplinary grounds. I sincerely hope that it will be shortly stopped altogether, but failing that, all Departments using the labour be made to pay cash returns for such to the Jail factory. Were such a system introduced, as I have requested should be done, I feel sure all requisitions from State Departments for Jail labour would speedily cease!

Every convict on admission should be inoculated for plague, if in a fit state of health. I am glad to find that all the Jail staff have availed themselves of this precaution against Plague.

Remarks by the Inspector General of Prisons in the minute book of the Mysore District jail made on the 14th March 1908.

I notice that about 50% of the prison population is at extra-mural labour and that too, of course, the fittest of the convicts. If all the convalescents, sick and infirm be deducted from the balance, it leaves a bare 50% to carry on all the current duties within the prison, including sanitation, cooking and industries. This state of affairs, I have always set my face against it, results in direct loss to Government in every way and has nothing to recommend it, but every thing to condemn it. To begin with, the guarding charges for such become at once excessive and the actual profits to the Jail are nil. Moreover the Jail Industries are consequently retarded or even held in abeyance and practically all sources of profit both monetary as well as economic to the Jail are stopped.

This system in vogue in the State prisons is very false economy and apart from reasons above stated, is most undesirable on disciplinary grounds. I sincerely hope that it will be shortly stopped altogether, but failing that, all departments using the labour be made to pay cash returns for such to the Jail factory. Were such a system introduced, as I have requested should be done, I feel sure all requisitions from State Departments for

Jail labour would speedily ceas

SIR,

Referring to your No.522/Pris.61-07-6 of 13th August 1908, I have the honor to say that, in my opinion, it is too late to begin to inoculate prisoners after Plague has appeared in the City.

2. The Jail is supplied by Mysore Territory where Plague in dropping cases is fully constant. Contagion is therefore constantly liable to be imported into the Jail.

3. I think therefore that convicted prisoners should be invariably inoculated on admission and every year afterwards during their imprisonment.
